

International Cooperation

Dirk Ryneveld
CACOLE president

Introduction to the day

Dirk Ryneveld
CACOLE president

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Independent oversight of policing: Old and new challenges

Colleen Lewis
Monash University, Australia

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Establishing professional standards in the modern police force

Pierce Murphy
Community Ombudsman, City of Boise

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Police accountability – When the going gets tough

Nuala O'Loan

Police Ombudsman for Northern Ireland

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Q&A Panel Session: Challenges, standards and accountability

Colleen Lewis, Pierce Murphy, Nuala O'Loan

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Oversight around the world

Chaired by Nuala O'Loan, Police Ombudsman for Northern Ireland

Aims of a network

Dirk Ryneveld
CACOLE President

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Importance of creating oversight bodies in developing countries

Tommy Tshabalala
Independent Complaints Directorate, South Africa

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Setting standards for effective police oversight

Barbara Attard
NACOLE

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Building a network: Membership, structure and setup

John Wadham
Independent Police Complaints Commission

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Engaging with existing network and creating a steering group

Martin Kreutner
Federal Bureau for Internal Affairs

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Q&A Panel Session: Oversight around the world

Tommy Tshabalala, Dirk Ryneveld,
Org

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

The New Zealand Approach

Allan Galbraith
New Zealand Police Complaints Authority

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

The South African Approach

Tommy Tshabalala
Independent Complaints Directorate, South Africa

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

The Belgian Approach

Gil Bourdoux
Comite P, Belgium

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

The Approach in Trinidad & Tobago

Christian Pieere
Police Complaints Authority, Trinidad and Tobago

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Q&A Panel Session: Different approaches to police oversight

Allan Galbraith, Tommy Tshabalala,
Gil Bourdoux, Christian Pierre

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Opportunities for learning

Chaired by John Wadham, IPCC

Effective engagement with ethnic minority communities

Eduardo Diaz

Independent Review Panel, Miami-Dade County

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Altus Police Station Visitors Week

Femke Hofstee-van der Meulen
Altus Global Alliance

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

The forum for preventing deaths in custody: A joined up approach to learning lessons and reducing avoidable deaths in England and Wales

Stephen Shaw
Prisons and Probation Ombudsman for England and Wales

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.

Q&A Panel Session: Gathering evidence and learning lessons

John Wadham, Eduardo Diaz,
Femke Hofstee-va der Meulen, Stephen Shaw

AIM 1: To create opportunities for existing oversight organisations to improve and develop by learning from the experience and knowledge of their peers in other jurisdictions.

AIM 2: To champion the principle that oversight of policing provides an essential protection of citizens' rights and is necessary to ensuring public trust in policing and its effective operation.